++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy, outbreaks of rain and drizzle clearing south later. Mild.

Today:
Dull start, with outbreaks of rain and drizzle, turning persistent and heavy, especially across the Pennines. Some southeastern parts drier and brighter. Rain gradually easing away south with the odd clearer spell into the north by the evening. Breezy. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Mostly dry overnight as any lingering rain or drizzle in the south eases, although perhaps the odd shower into the far north. A few clearer spells possible, with light winds. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Wednesday:
Fine and dry for most, with light winds. Some sunshine likely, especially across the north. Cloudier towards the south, with some hill fog and the odd spot of rain possible. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Dry Thursday, with any early mist clearing, and cloud breaking to give some brighter spells. Rather windy Friday, with rain spreading east. Brighter spells Saturday, with showers possible.
